

SPEAKER:

One of the most amazing moments I remember was when Freddie was lying down on the forest floor and went to sleep and he was cradling Oscar in his arms.

SPEAKER:

Oscar was lying on his back and he was looking up at the canopy, but he looked as though he was contemplating life.

SPEAKER:

I mean, it looked so human in the way that, you know, people would lie on a hammock, perhaps, and they would just think about things.
